Chinese Communist National Day

1. Chinese Communists in Macao decided that propaganda programs on the Chinese Communist National Day on 1 October would consist of protests against America's rearming of Japan and Western Germany. The Hui Yen (匯演) Drama Association, a Communist propaganda organization in Macao, rehearsed two plays to be given on this occasion entitled "Quack Doctor Truman" and "Truman Meets Tojo in a Dream."
2. The New Democratic Movement Policy Committee of the Chinese Communist Party in Macao held a meeting on 18 September 1951 at the Food Vocational Guild at Hsin Ma Lu (新馬路), Macao, regarding the National Day celebrations and decided to center their propaganda on this occasion on protests against America's rearming of Japan and Western Germany and to use an educational slogan, "Start signing patriotic promises, Chinese overseas residents!" All the slogans were to be drafted by CHANG Yeng (張英), secretary of the committee. CH'EN Man, who is in charge of the committee, was elected chairman of this meeting.
3. On 11 September Chinese Communist supporters in Macao held a meeting of the standing committee² on the third floor of the Macao Chamber of Commerce to discuss preparations for the celebration of National Day. The meeting decided to raise $2,000 in Portuguese currency for the celebration by levying $10 against each business guild and $5 against each union and high school, and by collecting contributions from other organizations. The committee decided that on this occasion there would be a mass celebration and recreational programs, all organizations, schools, and stores would proclaim a holiday and display flags, fire-crackers would be set off at noon, and a dinner party would be given which would be arranged by LIANG Chik-chia (梁赤霞), YEH Tzu-ming (葉子明), and LIU

5. Macao Communists found a time bomb on the steamer CHIN HAI (中國) at the third pier in Macao and decided it was planted there by Nationalist agents in Macao to frighten pro-Communists. As a result of this, Macao Communists warned people to take measures to prevent disturbances by Nationalist agents on the Chinese Communist National Day on 1 October. The government of Chungshan Hsien in Kwangtung Province also took precautions against disturbances by Nationalist agents from Macao by increasing the number of police guards and arming civilian disciplinary investigation teams.
